

FOREWARD

Dear Doctors,
Greetings!!!

Advances in research by in vitro and in vivo studies evolve in the form of newer and simpler surgical techniques with fewer complications. It is a continuing process and all efforts should be made to elevate its standard by inculcating the habit of research amongst the post graduate students, faculty and the practitioners of maxillofacial surgery. Dissertation writing amongst the PG students and short clinical studies amongst the undergraduate students forms the nidus for such future research. However lately the habit of treating these projects as useless prerequisites to obtain a degree or just to fulfill the requirements of being a teaching faculty has lowered the standards of research and teaching.

We as teachers and guides are duty bound to awaken the sense of inquisitiveness amongst our students by being knowledgeable and updated ourselves so as to steer our students in the right direction. It is really very heartening to learn that a research journal entitled JOURNAL OF HEAD AND NECK PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS is about to be published soon with Dr.Akheel Mohammad as its Founder & CEO whom I have known for quite sometime now. I have found him to be exceptionally hard working, talented and eager to learn from his teachers and mentors.He has achieved much at a young age and I wish him all the best for his endeavour.

This journal is yet another opportunity for clinicians and researchers to get their work published and I appeal to them to contribute to the growth of this journal.

“Wishing you good luck”

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Munish kohli BDS MDS
